Exercise 20, p. 11.

The Fugitive is an action-packed, edge-of-your-seat movie. The police unjustly accuse Dr. Richard Kimball, the main character, of his wife's murder. A court finds him guilty and sentences him to death. On the way to jail, the prison bus crashes and Kimball escapes. A U.S. marshall, Samuel Gerard, vows to catch Kimball. Several times he almost succeeds, but Kimball stays one step ahead of Gerard. In one incredible scene, Kimball jumps from the top of a dam into a river to escape.

Kimball doesn’t want Gerard to catch him, but he also wants to solve the murder of his wife. His search for answers takes him to Chicago. He finds upsetting information about a friend and the friend’s work with a pharmaceutical company. After many suspenseful scenes, Kimball finds the real killers and leads Gerard to them. (The present tense is used to describe the action.)

Part I

In 2011, at the age of 100, Fauja Singh did something incredible: he ran a 26-mile (42 km.) marathon! He was the first 100-year-old to ever run a marathon. Singh decided he wanted to compete in races when he saw a marathon race on TV. He was 89! He didn’t know much about training and showed up for his first session in a suit and tie.

Originally from India, Singh moved to England in the 1990s after his wife and son died. At the time, he said he felt more dead than alive. He was very depressed and later believed that long-distance running saved him.

He competed in his first marathon in London at the age of 89. He prepared for it in only ten weeks. His best time was at the 2003 Toronto Waterfront Marathon. He ran it in five hours and 40 minutes. Singh became world-famous and even carried the Olympic torch in 2012. In 2013, he decided to retire from long-distance running and completed his last marathon in Hong Kong.

Exercise 38, p. 23.
Note: The directions should say: Underline the past tense verbs.
Today was my first day at the university, and I was late for class. I didn’t remember the name of the building and went to the wrong one. After about ten minutes of confusion, I finally found the right class and walked in somewhat embarrassed. A girl with a friendly smile moved her books off the chair next to her. I sat down. The professor was going over the syllabus. I didn’t have a copy, but I didn’t want to interrupt him. The girl next to me shared hers. The course looked interesting but difficult. I wondered if all my classes had this much work. Then the teacher announced study groups. My new friend and I were in the same group. She introduced herself during the break, and I felt very comfortable when I spoke with her. Maybe the class is going to be OK after all.

Part I
The phrase “bucket list” has become popular because of a movie of the same name: The Bucket List. In the movie, two cancer patients, one a playboy and the other a family man, become roommates in the hospital. Neither has a good prognosis. They spend a lot of time together and talk about what they want to do before they “kick the bucket.” Kick the bucket is an idiom for “die.” So the two friends make “a bucket list”: a list of things they want to accomplish before they kick the bucket.
Now many people have made bucket lists. Activities often include traveling to exotic places and doing exciting sports like skydiving or bungee jumping. There are books and websites with hundreds of suggestions.

Exercise 21, p. 38.

Have you ever used flashcards to study grammar or vocabulary? Have you made flashcards to study the past participle forms that you saw at the beginning of this chapter? Research has shown that using flashcards with spaced-repetition practice is a very effective way to memorize information.

Spaced repetition means spacing out your practice over a period of time. For example, after you study a list of vocabulary words, you wait a few days to review them. If you get the words correct, you wait longer before you review them again. On the other hand, for words you missed, you practice them over shorter periods of time. There are many apps for spaced-repetition flashcard practice. I personally like AnkiApp because it’s very user-friendly. Anki follows your progress and chooses the flashcards for you to study each day.

Why is memorizing this way effective? Think about learning basic math. If you know your times tables (e.g., 5×1, 5×2, 5×3), then your mind is free to do more complex math because you don’t have to figure out these basic equations. The answer is right there for you to use. We can think of grammar in a similar way. If you know your past participles automatically, you don’t need to think about the form before you try to express your ideas.

For English grammar, I think spaced repetition is especially useful for learning irregular past tense and past participle forms; gerunds and infinitives; prepositions; and two- and three-word verbs. You can try out this technique with the past participles that we have studied in this chapter or with the gerunds and infinitives at the end of Chapter 1.

Exercise 23, p. 39.
I have just learned from my friend Robert Shaw that he has decided to leave his position as tour guide and that you need to find a summer replacement quickly. I would like to apply for the position.
I came to this city two years ago to study at Columbia University. I have been a student in history and economics since that time. I am a hard worker and have held several part-time jobs at the college: tutor, library researcher, and History Department teaching assistant.
I am originally from Mexico City and speak fluent Spanish and English. My father is an English professor, and I learned to speak English as a child. When I lived in Mexico, I worked at my uncle’s hotel. I helped tourists with their travel arrangements in the city. I also gave city tours in both Spanish and English. I have a good sense of humor, and my tours were a lot of fun.
Because of my history background, I have been very interested in this city since I arrived. I have done a lot of reading and have discovered many fascinating stories about it.
I think I have the qualifications to make an excellent tour guide. Would it be possible to speak with you about the job at a convenient time? I thank you in advance.

Exercise 16, p. 61.
Tia needs to leave work early. She is going to prepare for her business trip when she gets home. After she packs her suitcase, she is going to* rehearse her PowerPoint® presentation for her clients. Her father is going to come over and watch her presentation after he finishes dinner. While he is watching, Tia is going to ask him to give her honest feedback. After she practices several times, she will not feel so nervous about her presentation. She will pay some bills and send a few work emails before she goes to bed. After she gets into bed, she is going to fall asleep quickly because she knows that she is going to be / will be very tired.

[Note: *going to is used because it’s a prior plan. However, will is more common in writing, so will is also acceptable here.]

Exercise 20, p. 63.
This coming Saturday, I am beginning my “vacation of a lifetime.” The first place I'm going to is Bali. My plane leaves at six-thirty Saturday morning. I arrive in Bali late that afternoon. I'm staying at the Nusa Dua Beach Hotel. I leave Bali on the fifteenth and travel to Thailand. While I'm there, I'm staying with some friends. We'll take a boat tour in Bangkok and then travel to the countryside. There is a national park, and we'll do some hiking. Finally, we'll finish in Phuket. It'll be nice to relax on the beaches and go windsurfing, too. This will be my first trip to these places.

Exercise 21, p. 63.

In 1985, my parents emigrated to the United States from Brazil. They had never traveled outside of Brazil and were excited by the challenge of relocating to a foreign country. Eventually, they settled in California. My twin sister and I were born ten years later and grew up there. Last year, I went to Brazil for the first time to meet extended family. I had always wanted to learn more about my family's background. My dreams finally came true.

Exercise 26, p. 92.

Tipping is a common practice throughout the world although the custom can differ considerably among countries. Visitors new to a country are often unsure about how much to tip in restaurants, hotels, and airports. Technology has made the practice easier. There are apps that tell how much to tip in each country for various services. In the United States and Canada, workers in service industries such as restaurants, airports, and taxi driving commonly receive tips. In general, customers tip more when they are happy with the service and less when they are not. The amounts generally range from 10–20% of the bill, and the tip is based on the pre-tax amount, not the total bill.

In restaurants, 15% is average. Many restaurants now include suggested amounts at the bottom of the receipt. Some restaurants have a mandatory service charge if there is a large group (typically six or more people). It’s important to ask about this charge because it is usually 15–20%. Some carry-out or take-out restaurants and coffee shops have tip jars that some customers use. Skycaps at airports and bellhops at hotels also expect tips. Generally the number of bags the traveler has determines the tip. The amount per bag varies, so it’s good to check online before you travel. Tips for a taxi driver are usually based on a percentage of the fare, and 10–20% is common.

There are other service employees that rely on tip income: housekeeping, valet and concierge staff at hotels; food delivery drivers; hairdressers; and tour guides, to name a few. Many employers base their employees’ pay on the belief that most customers will leave tips, and they set the pay lower for that reason. Employees see tipping as part of their wages, not as an extra.

Before you visit a country, it’s a good idea to research tipping practices so you can make informed decisions about tipping.

In the U.S. and Canada, a popular way to get rid of used items is through a garage sale. The owner chooses a day or two, usually over a weekend, and sells miscellaneous stuff from the garage, driveway, or yard.

Popular items at garage sales include books, old magazines, art, clothes, jewelry, wood furniture, and toys. Usually the prices are very low, and often the buyer can bargain with the seller.

Some things you don’t want to buy for safety and health reasons include bicycle helmets, child car seats, tires, mattresses, upholstered furniture, cribs, baby bottles, old cookware, and stuffed animals. The equipment might be outdated, and anything with upholstery or stuffing might have bugs.
Occasionally people find valuable merchandise at garage sales. In 1999, a man in the U.S. paid $29 for a painting by Martin Heade. It turned out the painting was worth over $800,000! Another man bought a picture frame for $4.00. Inside was a rare copy of the Declaration of Independence, worth over $2 million!

Sample story:
I recently read an interesting article about a long-distance swimmer and an amazing experience he had during a race.
The man was swimming off the coast of New Zealand.
The area had sharks.
During the race, he looked down and saw a shark swimming under him.
Fortunately, ten dolphins were swimming nearby.
The dolphins made a protective circle around the swimmer.
The shark didn’t fight them and left.
The man survived because of the dolphins’ protection.
The dolphins continued to swim with him and guided him for more than an hour.

Exercise 25, p. 152.
Sample revision:
Many parents have concerns about the impact of social media on their children. One danger is Internet addiction: kids want to have their phones or computers with them at all times. They become anxious if they can’t answer an email or message immediately. They want to do their homework while they are chatting with friends. Teenagers say they can concentrate and still check social media. However, parents worry that their children need constant interaction and cannot handle quiet time.

Another problem is that social media takes away from in-person contact. Children and teenagers are at risk of interacting with screens more than they interact with one another. Texting and chatting online are not the same as actual conversation. Children and teenagers (or kids) need to learn how to initiate and engage in extended conversations with people. Additionally, when people don’t have much human contact, they can become isolated.

A third concern is that social media exposes children and teens to potentially inappropriate content. Parents can monitor their posts, but they can’t control other people’s posts. There’s a good chance their child will see something before the parents even know about it.

Exercise 38, p. 160.
Checking text messages in a meeting sends a negative message. First, it is disrespectful. When people check messages, they aren't paying attention to others in the meeting. It is impossible to read messages and listen to the speaker at the same time. Another problem is that the speaker expects the other members to participate in some way. Maybe they are at the meeting because they need to learn new information or perhaps they need to help problem-solve an issue. They can’t participate when they are looking at their phone. Finally, when people check messages, they send the message that their lives are more important than the content of the meeting. This superior attitude can make other people resentful.

Exercise 40, p. 181.
Freshman year can turn out to be the most challenging time in college for students. The transition from high school to college or university involves many changes. One of the biggest differences is the amount of freedom you must learn to manage.

In high school, your life is very structured, and you generally can’t choose how you spend your day. It begins and ends at the same time. Teachers take attendance and check homework. They tell you (or your parents) about missing assignments and low grades. Many give daily homework so that there is not too much work at one time.

However, college life is much more unstructured. The class schedule might not be the same every day. You can sleep in one morning and have to be up early the next. If you decide to skip a class, there is probably no one there to say you can’t do that.

College professors don’t have to take attendance or check whether their students have completed assignments. Instructors may have all their assignments on a syllabus and not even mention them in class. They might not remind you about deadlines or missing work. You may hear an instructor say, “I am not your parent.” Or even, “I am not a babysitter.”

You may find you have large blocks of unscheduled time. There are fewer classes each day than in high school, and you will probably not have every class every day. A two- or three-credit class may meet only once or twice a week. Instructors view these longer stretches of time between classes as valuable opportunities for studying. They often assign hefty amounts of reading, but with so many extra-curricular activities available, not to mention social media and Internet distractions, this study time can quickly evaporate. Your grades may suffer if you can’t manage time well. Sometimes students don’t realize they are in trouble until it is too late.

With an understanding of the challenges ahead, you can prepare in advance. Most colleges offer programs to help students with their transition, and there are many online resources available. The key is to remember that the responsibility for time management rests with you, not with your parents or teachers.

9. During class the students must sit quietly.
10. May / Could / Can I leave a few minutes early today? I have a doctor’s appointment.
11. I’m supposed to be at the meeting. I suppose I had better go.

Exercise 43, p. 183.

A fast heartbeat, a blank mind, and racing thoughts — these are but a few of the symptoms of test anxiety. It is not unusual for students to feel nervous before tests, but some people become so nervous that they can’t think clearly. During the test, they aren’t able to understand the questions, and they can’t retrieve information they already know. Some students might actually begin to feel physically sick. Nausea, cramping, and headaches are a few of the symptoms that students may have during or even days before a test. In some cases, anxiety can be so severe that otherwise successful students are unable to pass tests.

Exercise 10, p. 220.

The chief writing material of ancient times was papyrus. It was used in ancient times, was made from the skins of animals, such as sheep and goats. After the hair had been removed, the skins were stretched and rubbed smooth to make a writing surface. Paper, the main writing material today, was invented by the Chinese.

Ink has been used for writing and drawing throughout history. No one knows when the first ink was developed. The ancient Egyptians and Chinese made ink from various natural substances such as berries, soot, and tree bark. Through the centuries, thousands of different formulas have been developed for ink. Most ink today is made from synthetic chemicals.

Exercise 30, p. 233.

How important is context to reading? Extremely! In the 1970s, a famous study was conducted by Bransford and Johnson. Participants were asked to listen to a passage and then answer questions. The passage was similar to the following. Take a minute to read it:

This is a fairly easy process. It can be completed at home or at a different place if the necessary machinery isn’t available. First, items are put into different groups. But if there isn’t too much to deal with, one group may be enough. It’s important to look at everything carefully; a mistake could ruin a group. This first phase doesn’t take very long, especially the more times you do it. The next phase goes faster. Once it is taken care of, it won’t require your attention until it is finished. At that point, the items will be separated again. These groups will determine where everything goes. Once things are put away, you have finished until the process is repeated the next time.

Did the reading make sense to you? If you were confused, you are not alone. It’s difficult to make sense of. Then participants were given the title “Washing Clothes” and asked to read it again. Try this now.

As you can see, context makes a significant difference. That is why you have probably already learned how helpful it is to look at chapter heads and subheads when you are reading a textbook. And don’t forget to look at photos and other illustrations even before you start to read — or do an exercise. All of this information will help you read more efficiently.

Exercise 14, p. 363.
Ziplining began as a way to get people across impassible places like canyons and rivers. But in the 1980s, Costa Rica, with its emphasis on eco-tourism, turned it into a thrilling adventure. The opportunity to soar over spectacular scenery has made ziplining one of Costa Rica’s top tourist attractions.
The concept is very simple. A cable is strung across a scenic area, for example, a lush forest or fast-moving river. One end of the cable is higher than the other. A harness for the rider hangs from the cable. Riders are strapped tightly into the harness. They climb to a platform, jump off, and fly through the air.
Ziplining’s popularity has spread worldwide. The longest zip line is in Sun City, South Africa, where one cable is 1.2 miles (2 km) long. Average speeds are 75 miles (120 km) per hour! Not all zip line rides are as hair-raising.
Companies around the world strive to provide exciting and safe rides that will appeal to a variety of experience levels and age groups.

Exercise 24, p. 382.
It’s your first day of class, and you’re not sure what to call your teacher. Is the first name acceptable or too informal? If you use a title, should it be Dr. or Professor?

At the college level, many teachers actually prefer to use first names because it feels friendlier and less formal. They prefer not to have the psychological distance that a title creates.

While many teachers prefer first names, some would rather use titles. Dr. is for someone with a Ph.D. degree. It is important to know that not all instructors have Ph.D.s. In that case, Professor is more appropriate as long as the teacher has the following job title: Professor, Associate Professor, or Assistant Professor. Note that the last name, not first name, is used with Dr. and Professor.

Even though many graduate students teach college courses, they are not professors. One option for addressing them is Ms., or Mr. + last name. But most prefer first names since they are still technically students.

You can always ask your teacher: “What would you like to be called?” or “How would you like to be addressed?” Teachers like to have contact with students, and knowing your teacher’s preference may make it easier for you to approach him or her.

Exercise 42, p. 390.
How do people learn best? There is not one answer since much depends on individual learning styles and needs. Over 300 years ago, however, the noted inventor Benjamin Franklin made some observations regarding learning that still hold true for a great many learners today: “Tell me and I forget. Teach me and I remember. Involve me and I learn.”
Imagine that you are learning how to fold a paper airplane. Before you ever pick up a piece of paper, the person says the following:
• Take a piece of paper.
• Fold it in half.
• Open the paper.
• Look at the crease in the middle.
• Now take one corner and fold it down along the crease.
All of the information is presented verbally. How well are you going to learn how to fold a paper airplane so long as the instructor continues in this manner?
Now imagine that your instructor is standing before you with paper and gives the directions while she folds the paper herself. Will this help you more?

Finally, imagine that both you and your instructor have paper. Every time she gives you instructions, both you and she fold your own papers.

Of the three methods, which one will be the most effective in helping you learn how to fold a paper airplane?

It’s interesting to think about Benjamin Franklin’s quote in relation to learning English. How do you learn English best? Is “being told” effective for you? What about “being taught”? How about “being involved”?

A small accident helped Alexander Graham Bell with his invention of the telephone. While running a test to create a machine for voices, Bell spilled acid on his coat. He called to Mr. Watson, his assistant, who was in a different room. Watson heard Bell’s words coming out of their new machine. Upon realizing what had happened, Watson and Bell knew that the invention was successful. Bell told the world about his discovery after testing the machine multiple times. Scientists understood the value of his work, but the general public, believing the phone was more of a toy, paid little attention to his announcement.

Exercise 54, p. 450.

Can you imagine a world where people felt no pain? At first it sounds appealing. You wouldn’t know the agonizing suffering that comes from pain. If you had a throbbing headache or toothache, you wouldn’t even feel it. But you also wouldn’t know to check if the headache or toothache indicated something more serious. Or if you had a different condition, like a broken bone, you wouldn’t necessarily know that it needed to be treated.

Some people are born with an inability to feel pain. However, rather than being a positive condition, it causes untold problems. If people can’t feel pain, they don’t know if they are hurt. For parents of young children, this is a nightmare. How would a child know about the dangers of a hot stove or broken glass? A burn wouldn’t be painful and a cut wouldn’t hurt.

Parents of these children have to continually watch for injuries. Normal activities like going to the playground aren’t at all normal. Suppose a child fell from the top of a slide. He or she might find this fun and try to do it again, risking further injury.

Pain turns out to be lifesaving; it helps us to know if something is wrong and requires treatment. Without it, we would go through life hurting ourselves, possibly with deadly outcomes.
